

MEDHOMADHAN PROGRAM

2021-22

The Institutional Research Committee (IRC) organized a Medhomadhan program for pre-clinical students on the 16th of August, 2022. 27 first and second BDS students enrolled for the program corresponding to their specialty of interest. Review topics were encouraged for presentation.

Chairpersons for the 5hr session were invited on hourly basis from various specialties to judge the presentation. Discussions were done for every paper presentation which guided the students to indulge in further research activities. Certificates of scientific presentation were handed over to the presenters immediately after the session.

Active participation of students and staff

Presentations by the students followed by certificate distribution

Certificate distribution to the chair persons of the session

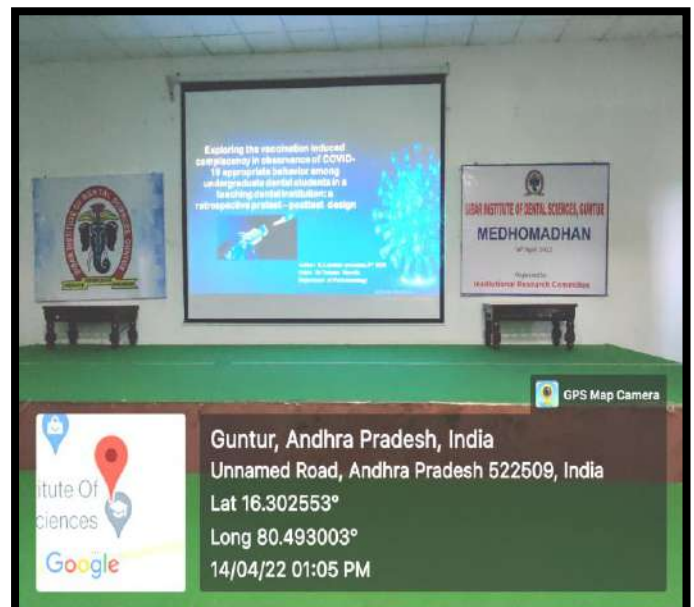

The Institutional Research Committee (IRC) organized Medhomadhan program for clinical students on the 14th of April 2022. About 30 third and final BDS students participated conforming to their specialty of interest. Original research topics were included for presentation.

Chairpersons for the 5hr session were invited on hourly basis from various specialties to judge the original research papers. Elaborate discussion was done after every presentation which guided the students to indulge in further research activities and even progress with present research topics for grants.

Students presenting their research

Distribution of certificates to the participants of the program

MEDHOMADHAN PROGRAM

2019-20

The Institutional Research Committee (IRC) organized Medhomadhan program for clinical students on 17th December, 2019. Chief Guest of the program, Dr.K.Sankar MD, Registrar of Dr.NTR University of Health Sciences was invited to encourage the students towards research in dentistry. About 53 third and final BDS students participated as authors or co-authors, with presentations on topics pertaining to various specialties of dentistry. Original research and review topics were included for presentation.

28 papers and posters were presented by the students. 14 chairpersons belonging to different specialties have enthusiastically chaired the sessions, assessed the presentations of the students. Constructive comments were given to build the confidence of the students on the topic. Tips related to modulation of speech, skills for presentation were elaborated. There was an open discussion on the topic at the end of each presentation and the students have also attained knowledge on presentation skills. Participation certificates were awarded to the students at the end of each session.

Dignitaries lighting the lamp

Dean Dr.L.Krishna Prasad addressing the event

Chief guest addressing the event

Student presenting their research

MEDHOMADHAN PROGRAM

2018-19

The Institutional Research Committee (IRC) has conducted Medhomadhan program for preclinical students on 30th March, 2019. 18 preclinical students have participated corresponding to various specialties of interest. Ten review topics were categorized for presentation. Chair persons belonging to different specialties have enthusiastically chaired the sessions, evaluated the student's performances and also had given their input. There was an open discussion on the topic at the end of each presentation with tips given to the students on presentation skills. Participation certificates were awarded to the students at the end of each session.

Medhomadhan program for preclinical students was conducted on 17th Nov 2018 by the Institutional Research Committee (IRC). About 107 third and final BDS students participated consistent with various specialties of interest. Original research, review and case series were categorized for presentation. 35 papers and posters were presented by the students. 15 chairpersons belonging to different specialties have enthusiastically chaired the sessions, evaluated the student's performances and also gave their feedback. There was an open discussion on the topic at the end of each presentation. Participation certificates were awarded to the students at the end of each session.

MEDHOMADHAN PROGRAM

2017-18

The Institutional Research Committee (IRC) has conducted Medhomadhan program for preclinical students on 15th Feb, 2018. Around 21 pre-clinical students participated corresponding to their specialty of interest. Review topics were categorized for presentations and various papers and posters were presented by the students. Faculty worked with the students and guided them. Esteemed guest faculty Dr. Steven R. Singer , Dr.Muralidhar.M from the University of Rutgers, USA were invited to the program to encourage and enlighten students pertaining to the importance of research in future times, India's focus on the research work, research grants, importance of presentations and publications to seed in as early as at the undergraduate level. They appreciated the efforts and vision of our Dean Dr. L. Krishna Prasad for encouraging the students and inculcating interest in research in them. 10 chairpersons belonging to different specialties have enthusiastically chaired the sessions, evaluated the student's performances and also had given their input. There was an open discussion on the topic at the end of each presentation and the students attained knowledge on their topic of interest along with suggestions on improvising their presentation skills. The participation certificates were awarded to the students at the end of each session.

Students presenting their research work and receiving appreciation certificates

Group picture of the dignitaries and students

The Institutional Research Committee (IRC) has organized Medhomadhan program for clinical students on 8th November, 2017. 41 clinical students actively participated in the program conforming to their specialty of interest. It is the first of its kind program scheduled to encourage research activity in students. Numerous clinical topics, short studies, in-vitro studies, review topics, case reports were categorized for the participation of the students. Respective faculty worked together and guided the students. 16 chairpersons belonging to different specialties have enthusiastically chaired the sessions, evaluated the student's performances and gave their input. There was an open discussion on the topic at the end of each presentation and the students have also attained knowledge on presentation skills. Participation certificates were awarded to the students at the end of each session.

Dignitaries lighting the lamp and addressing the gathering

Students receiving appreciation certificates

